A woman had two sons, and they always made fun of their friends. “How can I stop them?” she thought hard. Then, she came up with an idea. She took out a knife and cut an apple into two pieces. After that, she put them into two different glass jars, labeled them “good” and “bad,” and set them on the dining table.

Every time the woman walked by the “good” apple, she would tell it something good, like “You’re perfect!” and “I love you.” Her boys saw that and also did the same. As for the “bad” apple, she talked to it negatively with things like, “You’re ugly!” and “You’re the worst!” Not surprisingly, her sons did the same.

A month later, the “good” apple still looked good, but the “bad” apple was rotten. In the end, the woman was successful, and her kids learned their lesson about bullying.

Hey Michael,

I just got my order, and I have some bad news to tell you. Some of the items were missing. Also, a few of them were completely wrong.

The missing ones are the whale hand puppets, the shark fin hats, and the zebra pattern bags. It was strange to see them missing from the order because that never happened before.

Now for the wrong ones. All of the hobbyhorses are brown, but we specifically asked for some black ones and a few white ones. Next, three of the cow toys don’t have tails, and only one of the ducks make any noise. Last, few of the snakes have eyes, and none of the kangaroos have pockets or babies in them. What’s with all of these mistakes? Are you having trouble with your workers, or are you training a new group of people?

Anyway, I need you to solve this for me and fast. Christmas is around the corner, and I need to make sure our shelves are full and ready to go. Get back to me when you get this.

Regards,
 Vincent

The Beatles was one of the most famous and popular rock bands of all time. Its members were John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, and Ringo Starr. All four of them were from Liverpool, England, and the band first came together there in 1960. During the next three years, they spent most of their time playing in clubs in Liverpool and in Hamburg, Germany. At that time, they also found a manager to help them become more professional and a producer to help them make great songs.

Their first hit, “Love Me Do,” came out in late 1962, and it didn’t take long for people to fall in love with it and with them. Over the next year, more and more people in the UK heard their songs on the radio and watched them playing on TV and in person. After their first album came out in 1963, the Beatles grew even more popular. By early 1964, they were international rock stars and leading the “British Invasion” of the USA. The band continued to make music until their breakup in 1970. Though the Beatles aren’t around anymore, their music lives on.
