(A) Sofia was very angry because someone ate her cake last night. She put it in the fridge at 12:00 a.m., and then she went to bed. But the next day, her cake was not there. She wanted to find out who ate her cake. She asked everyone in her family and took notes in her notebook. Only one person lied to her and it was him/her eating the cake. Here is her notes.

Mom: I heard noises at 2:30 a.m., so I woke up and tried to kill the mosquitos.

Dad: I went to the bathroom at a quarter past two. Fifteen minutes later, the mosquitos woke up your mom. She killed the mosquitos at 3:00 and then we went to bed.

Tom: At ten to three, I opened my eyes and saw a woman! She was wearing a pink pajama and running after a mosquito. It was scary. So I got up, went to the kitchen and drank some water.

Judy: I saw your cake in the fridge at 2:05 a.m., and then I went to bed. An hour later, I felt hungry, so I went to the kitchen and opened the fridge again. Guess what? Your cake was not there.

Grandpa: I woke up at a quarter to three and I just took a walk inside our house. It was so quiet. Everyone was sleeping.

Do you go online every day? Of course, you do. And most people do, too. The Internet plays a big part in our life. For example, we go online to buy things, post pictures, and play online games. It is also convenient to read news online. However, is online news always true?

Fake news is a growing problem. It looks like any other news story, but it's not true. People might believe fake news because sometimes they are not able to tell the difference between true news and fake news. Here are some easy ways to help spot and stop fake news. First, ask yourself about these questions:

Is there any evidence? Who is telling you this information? Where does it come from? When is it? You may do a quick check and look for the source. Then, before you share any information, ask yourself, "Is this real?" It is important to be doubtful and careful when we read any information on the Internet.

most 大多數 convenient 便利的 difference 不同之處 spot 發現 evidence 證據
information 資訊 source 來源 doubtful 懷疑的 careful 小心的

- ( ) 7. According to the reading, which is NOT the right thing to do when you go online ?
(A) Buy things, post pictures, and play games.
(B) Share everything on the Internet with your friends.
(C) Read online news every day.
(D) Think about and be careful about the information on the Internet.
- ( ) 8. Mary: The news on my Facebook says that Corona virus is from Corona Beer. That's terrible. I just drank it yesterday. Oh! Don't get close to me. I am going to die.
According to the reading, what should(應該) you say to Mary?
(A) You are sick. Go to see a doctor.
(B) Thank god. I didn't drink the beer yesterday.
(C) Cool down. The news on the Internet is not always true.
(D) We need to fight for our health. Don't buy the beer.

(C)

Riddles are questions. They may look easy, but to find the answer, you must be clever. It is a fun way to test your brain and also improve your English. Here are 2 riddles for you.
