What is Time

Time is an idea that affects our lives every day. We use it to measure the hours, days, months, and years. But what is time?

Time allows us to plan a schedule, the future, and our lives. Without time, it would be hard to plan our day.

The smallest unit of time is the second. Sixty seconds make a minute, sixty minutes make an hour, and twenty-four hours make a day. A week has seven days, a month can have 28 to 31 days, and a year has 365 days or 366 days. We can measure time with clocks and calendars. These help us to know the time and follow our schedules.

Time is also important for our bodies. Our body has a clock that says when to sleep and wake up. Listening to our body clock helps us stay happy and healthy.
