“What do you want to be when you grow up?” A common question you may have been asked several times. A doctor? A businessman? A lawyer? Or a teacher? But will you be one first and then another?

Er-xi Liu, the owner of the first 24-hour bookstore in Guangzhou, China, has so far experienced some job changes. After leaving college, Liu worked as an architect. He once helped build Guangzhou Opera House, one of the world's top ten opera houses. Then unhappy about the tiring building job, Liu got the urge for a change. Still an architect, he opened a coffee shop with a few friends, which brought him more money. After opening a second one in less than a year, Liu left his first job. He was 26 then. However, the easy life of running coffee shops soon bored him. Liu left for Taiwan to study in college.

On August 20, 2013, to celebrate his 29th birthday, Liu decided to go around Taiwan on foot. It took him 51 days to finish the 1,200 km trip. During the trip, he enjoyed the wonderful things and people on the island. He later wrote a book about this once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Touched by the warm feeling he had experienced on the 1,200 km trip and having heard about Eslite 24 Hour Bookstore in Taipei, Liu thought about giving others a warm place by opening a 24-hour bookstore in China. In 2014, 1200bookshop was opened.

Liu's bookstore is a haven for people who have sleep problems, who feel lonely or sad, or who cannot find a place to stay for the night. They have found a feeling of home there. With Liu's special way of running the store, 1200bookshop was chosen by CNN in 2014 as one of the world's 17 coolest bookstores.

Liu, a man who does not like to stay in his comfort zone, is always on the move. We have no idea what he will do next. However, he is surely serious about every move. And that makes his life different.
