七、閱讀測驗 10% (每題 1 分)

(一)

People from different countries have different pictures of fingers. Even the same gesture in different countries have different meanings.

For example, in American and European cultures, a thumbs-up sign is a symbol of “well-done.” In Brazil, they don’t use an “OK” gesture. Because they think it is not polite. So how do Brazilians say agree with a hand gesture? They will give you a thumbs-up sign. However, in Egypt, a thumbs-up sign has the same meaning as the Taiwanese middle finger standing alone. So, it would be very rude if you do so.

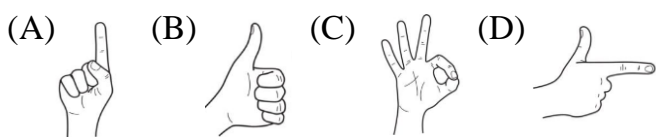

In Germany, counting one starts with the thumb. So, if you need to order one cup of coffee in the German coffee shop, you need to show a thumb, not a pointer finger in our common knowledge.

Next time, before you take a trip, remember the words, “When in Rome, do as the Romans do.” Try to know more about each country’s special gestures, or using wrong gestures in wrong places will lead to lots of trouble.

📖 gesture 手勢 European 歐洲的 thumb 大拇指

(二)

There were twin brothers named Eric and Ian. They looked the same, but they had different personalities. Eric always thought of the worst, but Ian always hoped for the best.

One day, their parents decided to test them. They filled Eric’s room with the toys, while they filled Ian’s room with the horse manure.

When they went to check on the boys, they found Eric sitting in the middle of his room, and crying. “What’s wrong?” they asked. “All these toys are great, but I know they’ll break or get old someday. Then I’ll have nothing.”

When they went to Ian’s room, they found him digging the manure with a shovel excitedly. “What are you doing?” they asked. “With all the manure,” Ian replied, “there must be a pony somewhere in my room!”
